GOT MANY HITS OFF BOYLE

The Hoosiers Were Checked by Costly Errors in Making a Victory Certain.

Washington Batters Had Luck, Particularly in the Ninth, When Hits Were Made in Quick Succession-Other Games.

BASE-BALL.

The Hoosiers, Through Ineffective Pitching

and Errors, Lose Another Game. Inasmuch as Boyle was known to be in good condition, and had not been overworked during the past week, it was expected that he would pitch a winning game against the Washington weaklings yesterday afternoon. Much to the surprise and disgust of the crowd, however, he did miserable work and allowed the visitors to knock out a second victory after it seemed like a sure thing for the home team. It is true that costly errors contributed to the defeat, but that does not alter the fact that Boyle pitched with poor judgment and consequently little effect when good work was necessary. It seems strange that a pitcher of his ability should allow a combination like the Washington club to bunch eleven hits in two innings, and had he put more life into his work and used better judgment it would not have occurred. In the second inning the visitors made six hits in succession, which, with an error by Daily, who was playing first base in place of Hines, let four men across the plate. After that Boyle did better until the ninth was reached, though he was hit freely. He was saved several hits by good fielding, but in the final inning. after Indianapolis had secured a good lead, he went to pieces again, and as a result the weaklings made five clean drives to the out-field, by which, coupled with Glasscock's fumble and a very stupid play by Denny, the visitors sent four more runs around the bases and won the game. The hits made off Boyle in the second inning were nearly of the scratch order, but was not the case in the ninth. The men in black stepped up to the plate and lined the ball out beyond the reach of the fielders, except in one instance, when Denny was given a chance one and he failed to accept it.

The local men began well in the first inning, when a base hit by Seery, fumbles by Haddock and Wise, an out and a single by Sullivan let in two runs. There was an excellent chance to increase this lead in the same inning, the bases being full, with Daily at the bat, but he struck out and left them all. The Washington team was blanked in their half, but when the second opened the visitors found the ball and kept opened the visitors found the ball and kept finding it throughout the game, though Boyle held them down fairly well until the ninth. In the second Mack, Clark, Irwin, Daly, Carney and Haddock all made hits in order and four men crossed the plate, Daily's error helping things along. This lead was overcome by the Hoosiers in the fourth, when a combination of hits, bases on balls and errors allowed three men to score after two had been retired. Buckley struck out and McGeachy went out from Haddock to Carney, Bassett hit for a base and went to second on a wild pitch. Boyle made a single and advanced a base when Wise fumbled the ball. Seery got first on four bad balls, filling the bases. Glasscock hit to Quinn, but Carney muffed the assist, Bassett scoring. Then Denny drove one to sett scoring. Then Denny drove one to left field, and Boyle and Seery came home. Daily got first on balls, but Sullivan went out from Clark to Carney.

to retire the batter, but it was a difficult single gave the home team another run in the fifth, and Glasscock's single. Denny's out and a hit by Daily scored one in the sixth. With a lead of three, in the ninth, it looked like a sure thing for the Horsiers, but the situation was materially changed when the inn-ing was over. Irwin led off with a single, Daly hit one to Denny but the ball bounded bad and the batter was safe. Carney flew out to McGeachy. but Haddock, a weak hitter, followed with a clean single, filling the bases. Wise struck out and the crowd felt easier for a moment, but Hoy hit safe and Irwin scored. Wilmot followed with a single and Daly and Haddock came home, tying the game. Mack hit to Glasscock but he fumbled the ball. Then Clark sent a grounder to Denny, which the latter juggled, and then held the ball without making an effort to throw the funner out and Hoy crossed the plate with the winning tally. Score:

The final final game of the Washington series will be played this afternoon. It is probable that Getzein will be in the box for the home team, and Ferson for the visitors. The Hoosiers ought to get at least one game from the tail-enders, and will make a desperate effort to do it this afternoon.

TURF EVENTS. Proctor Knott Again Beaten-Longstreet Wins the Omnibus Stakes at Monmouth. MONMOUTH PARK, Aug. 13.-The Omnibus stakes, a sweepstakes of $250 each, for three-year-olds, distance one mile and a half, was run here to-day, and won by Longstreet in 2:3634 by two lengths. Proctor Knott was second and Salvator third. The value of the stakes to the winner is in the neighborhood of $24,000. The fame of the contest, and the fact that the great Western crack was billed to participate in it, attracted here the largest attendance of the meeting, good judges estimating the crowd at 12,000. The track was as fast as it is possible to get it. It was dusty on the turns and the back stretch, but the quarterstretch was sprinkled. The great event was the fourth on the card. Buddhist was the first to show. He was followed by Salvator, Calciente, Proctor Knott, Eric and Lioness. Longstreet remained on the back stretch until they started. After one false start the flag fell to an elegant send-off, in which Salvator was first away. The Lioness, Longstreet, Calciente and Buddhist were next, and Proctor Knott was last. The Lioness at once took the lead. On the lower turn Buddhist was at The Lioness's shoulder and a length and a half before Longstreet. He was a length in front of Eric. Salvator and Knott were still behind. As they rounded into the back stretch Buddhist took the lead two lengths before Longstreet. The Lioness was third. Salvator moved up to third place nearing the stables, and Proctor Knott kept him com-pany. They ran in this way, half-lengths apart, until they swung into the home stretch. Then began the tug of war in earnest. Neither whip, spur nor voice was spared in the effort to get the lead. At the last furlong Longstreet was a length before Salvator, who was two lengths in front of Buddhist, who had Proctor Knott at his

Now, the fight was fast and furious. Proctor Knott began moving up, but to the Proctor Knott began moving up, but to the dismay of his backers Longstreet began drawing away. "Why, Longstreet wins, nobody but Longstreet wins!" was cried. It was true. A moment later he had clear daylight between himself and his next pursuer. The Opening at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The August meeting of the circuit races opened here this afternoon. There were 6,000 people on the grounds, and betting and pool-selling were lively. The track was in fairly good condition, but a little heavy. Time was called at 2 o'clock, but only eleven heats were trotted before darkness, and only one race was decided. Contrary to custom, the great event of the meet, the Flower City $10,000-guarantee stake race for the 2:30 class, was called on the first day. Veritas, Bud Doble's bay gelding, was the favorite before the first heat, pools selling $100 on Veritas to $50 on the field. He took the first heat but lost the second, still remaining the favorite. Six heats were trotted, and at that time Star Lily and Sprague Golddust bad two heats each. The race will be finished to-morrow.

The pacing race for the 2:27 class, two thousand dollars purse, divided among four horses making the best record, was the only one finished. Summaries:

CAUGHT IN LOUISVILLE.

Porter, with Aliases and Stenographic Reports, Resting in a Prison in That City.

A few days ago the New Denison and the Grand hotels were victimized by a smooth young man who at one hostelry inscribed the name of Proctor Holmes upon the register, and at the other left, as a souvenir of his short and unremunerative sojourn, the name of Horace Porter. It was under the latter name that he registered soon afterward at the Galt House, Louisville, crediting himself to the Chicago Herald, and being assigned to Room 415. He represented himself in Indianapolis as a newspaper man, but at Louisville he was a writer with a more noble and glorious mission than he had given out here. To the sympathetic Kentuckians he said he had been sent out to write up the prisons and charitable institutions of that State and Indiana. He was a sort of literary Jingle, and his tongue ran so smoothly that his low-cut shoes, well-worn trousers and shabby coat went unquestioned. Mr. Porter, after taking abath and securing 75 cents' worth of imported cigars, ordered a hack, with the rebill. He then left to inspect the penal institution on the Indiana side of the river. Warden Patten much impressed with his elegant manners and vast and varied stock of information, showed him through the prison with great urbanity. the Courier-Journal reporter had his picions of Mr. Porter, and found that several of the old prisoners had recognized him as an ex-convict who had been sent from Vanderburg county, Dec. 11, 1878, for petit larceny, and who was dismissed Nov. 27, 1880. The prisoners were positive in their identification, a large scar under the right eye and another under the left ear being well remembered marks on Frank Leslie, the convict.

Mr. Porter had by this time returned to Louisville, first exacting a promise from Warden Patten and others to join him that evening at the Galt House in a champagne supper. On leaving the hotel to go to Jeffersonville, Mr. Porter had written instructions for the cashier of the Galt as follows: "Should a stenographic press report lows: "Should a stenographic press report arrive for me during my absence, please pay bearer and charge to my account. In case the price be above $10 retain unpaid." Subsequently a messenger had appeared with a long envelope, subscribed, "Mr. Horace Porter, special correspondent of the Chicago Herald, 1,200 words, price, $10." Upon the strength of the written instructions given him the cashier had given the messenger $10 and the envelope had been placed in Mr. Porter's box. The suspicious reporter had come over from Jeffersonville. reporter had come over from Jeffersonville, and, after a conversation with the cashier, the envelope was opened. It contained two sheets of paper which was a poor imitation of a stenographic manuscript. Mr. Perter by this time had gone out again. Later on he was heard to be at the Louis-ville Hotel, where he had registered as "Lawrence Howard, New York Tribune." When the clerk of the Galt House went to the rival hotel he found that Mr. Porter-Leslie-Howard had taken supper and then gone out for a stroll. Later on he was found upon the street and arrested. He refused to talk. The stenographic manuscript swindle is the same one he played in this city.

Damaged Beauties. Surveyor of Customs Hildebrand is investing a claim for damages which will amount to between $400 and $500. Some time ago Charles Mayer & Co. imported a great lot of German dolls, and upon opening the packing cases in which they came the little blondes and brunettes, blue-eyed beauties and black-eyed darlings, were found to be sadly disfigured. Not only were the shoes and drapery they were ser-iously damaged, but the complexions of many were unterly ruined, and with that often went the loss of one or both eyes and a nose or an ear, and sometimes the hair was gone. This state of affairs is supposed to have been occasioned by the dolls having been put into the hold of a ship which had previously come from South America with green salted hides.

SETTING ASIDE A RECEIVER

A Lawyer Says It Is Not New to Put Railroads in the District Courts.

Justice Harlan Holds that Where a Road Goes Into Two or More Jurisdictions Proceedings Must Be Original in Each.

The validity of ancillary proceedings regarding the appointment of a receiver for the Indianapolis, Decatur & Western railroad seems to have been the question upon which the order setting aside that entry was made by Judge Gresham, of the United States Circuit Court. It is ancillary in the the profession, but brought to every-day vernacular, such proceedings mean, as in this instance, the carrying of copies of original proceedings in one United States District Court to another. When Judge Woods, of that court, in this State, appointed R. B. F. Peirce receiver of the I., D. & W., on the petition of his co-trustee, copies of the complaint and record were taken to Springfield, Ill., where Judge Allen extended the powers of his court over the receivership. "This was in keeping with practice," said a leading lawyer yesterday, "that had been followed in the Wabash receivership which originated in the United States District court at St. Louis. The ancillary proceedings were taken in the two District Courts of Illinois, as the Wabash system extended through both dis-tricts, and also in Indiana, where Judge Woods made an order in effect adopting the record of the St. Louis court. But Judge Woods reserved the right to rescind this action and took particular care to preserve the interests of Indiana claimants.

"There was no objection raised to the validity of proceedings of this kind, nor was the method ever questioned some months ago Justice Harlan, then in the West Virginia Circuit. heard, with Judge Jackson, questions per-taining to a receivership of an Ohio road cillary proceedings were carried out in the West Virginia district. Justice Harlan held that there must be an original complaint and action in West Virginia, as well as in Ohio. Had the Sands petition for re-ceiver for the I., D. & W. been original in Illinois, as well as in Indiana, it is possible Judge Gresham would not have interfered, although it is understood that he claims the proceedings should have originated in the Circuit. instead of the District Court. But here-tofore the method followed in the I., D. & W. rec eivership has never been 'disturbed. It was the Harlan decision, it is presumed, that interfered and restored the I., D. & W. to the possession of the trustees of the

The trustees of the I., D. & W., it is said, had the alternative of having the road placed in the hands of a receiver by their own action or going into the State courts as defendants to a petition from one of the creditors. The attorney of the latter last week went to Trustee Peirce and told him that the claim of his client had nearly run the limit of the six months' reserve rule. The six months would be up on the following Friday, and if the claim was not protected by the trustees the claim was not protected by the trustees applying for a receivership, he, the attorney, would go to the State courts. After a con-sultation in New York the action which has been set aside was deemed best to pro-tect the claims like that held by the attorney, who intimated what he would do if the receivership was not obtained in the United States Court. "As the receiver-ship has been annulled," said a lawyer yesterday, "the affairs of the company are placed just where they were before the application was filed. The claims, therefore, that have lost the protection of the six-months' rule, since Friday, must take their chance. It is claimed that the bondholders were alone favored by the receivership, and that their coupons had been met at the expense of the operating expenses, but the last payment of that kind was months prior to the time the current indebtedness of the road began." In regard to this matter the Sentinel said editorially yesterday: "Judge Gresham's ruling in the I., D. & W. receivership matter shows that his ideas of justice are clear and sound. A court that undertakes to protect bondholders and neglects employes has a very poor conception of equity." An examination of the order of Judge Woods appointing Mr. Peirce as receiver shows that it directs him to "pay all current ex-penses in the operation of said road." The last paragraph of the order, which also protects existing claims of employes and others, is as follows: "The court expressly reserves the power to hereafter pass upon, and if deemed just, allow any claims arising under the six-months' rule, and to re-

Grievances of Married People. Maggie Pattison filed a complaint in the Superior Court, yesterday, for a divorce from Frederick R. Pattison. They were married in January, 1883, but Pattison is now serving a one-year's sentence in the penitentiary for a self-confessed theft. their two children, aged five and three years, respectively. Henry Ostendorf also asked for a divorce from Laura Ostendorf, to whom he was married in June, 1881. He claims that in 1887 she abandoned him, without cause. He asks for the care of his two children. A third complaint, filed late in the afternoon by William Dudley, against Laura Dudley, contained some rather interesting features. They were married, in 1887, in New Albany, and lived together until September, 1888. In his complaint Mr. Dudley says that at the time of his marriage his wife induced him to believe that she had never been married but once before, whereas, he says, he has since learned that she has had three husbands, and had as often been divorced on account of her own misconduct. Soon after she had secured the hand of her fourth husband, the present plaintiff, she is charged with having abandoned him in. New Albany, where he was located as a minister in the Colored Baptist Church. Her alleged purpose in such a course was to bring her husband into ridicule by gaining for herself the reputation of being a disreputable woman.

Olsen Wants a Receiver. Olaf R. Olsen filed a complaint yesterday against George W. Moore, asking that their partnership be dissolved and a re? ceiver be appointed. In 1887 the plaintiff claims that he engaged in partnership with Moore and Frank M. Reeder, the company operating the Indianapolis Bole and Machine Works. When the agreement was made, Mr. Olsen says, the consideration which was to be paid to him in cash was not mentioned, but was understood to be $3,671.49. Moore and Reeder, however, inserted $3,000 in the contract. Of this, $2,621.35 is still due, and Mr. Moore is charged with having conducted the establishment to further his own interests. Among other things he is accused of having charged the firm $1,200 a year for clerical services, for which he paid only $500. By a special order, Judge Taylor will give the case a hearing next Friday.

Receiver Malott's Report. V. T. Malott, as receiver for the Chicago & Atlantic railroad, filed his report for July in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. From June 30 to July 31 the receipts of the road were $412,672.12, and the disbursements. $314,129.12. leaving a balance on hand of $98.543. Judge Gresham au-thorized Mr. Malott to issue $250,000 on certificates for supplies. The Chicago & Western Indiana railroad is also to re-ceive $16,000 on rental accounts.

Admitted to Practice. Harry T. Tincher was admitted to practice in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. He was examined in 1882, but never applied for admission.

Driven to Death by Fanaticism.

BIRMINGHAM. Ala., Aug. 13.—The most remarkable religious craze pervades the negroes near Bessemer and the country intermediate between there and Birmingham. For some time past an old negro that extended into West Virginia. The petition for a receiver and foreclosure began in the Southern Ohio district, and the ancillary proceedings were carried out in the cillary proceedings were carr norant and superstitious, and Jackson's actions, and the great powers with which he claims to be vested, filled them with awe. Saturday last he persuaded three young negro men that they were repre-sentatives of Shadrach, Meshack and Abednego, the three children of faith, who ennego, the three children of faith, who entered the fiery furnace of Nebuchadnezzar of old. The three negroes calling themselves the three children of Israel, under the influence of the new prophet, deliberately entered the gate of the cupola of an iron furnace, and rushed headlong, before they could be stopped, into the white heat of the melting iron. When they failed to come out Jackson, the prophet, proclaimed that he saw them rising in the air with the smoke of the furnace, attended by angels, and said that they would revisit the earth again next Sunday. again next Sunday.

> Will Not Smash the Twine Trust. St. Paul, Aug. 13.—The last Legislature appointed a committee to investigate as to the practicability of manufacturing twine in the Stillwater penitentiary. It was suggested that all the twine required by the agricultural interests in the State could be supplied at moderate cost, and thus emancipate the farmers from the clutches of the twine combination. Edwin Dunn and F. W. Temple, of the board of managers of the prison, were appointed as a committee, and, after visiting Chicago, Cincinnati, New York, and other points, and interviewing a number of twine manufacturers and dealers, they have returned and reported adversely.

Double Killing. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 13.-Warrants were issued yesterday for Amel Goch, a farmer who owns a farm in Bowne township, Kent county, and his hired man, named Charles Brailey, for stealing twenty-five bushels of wheat from a neighboring farmer. Last evening deputy sheriff P. B. Sinclair and his brother, D. A. Sinclair, went to the farm to arrest the men. As they drove up to the house a shot was fired through the door from inside and D. A. Sinclair fell mortally wounded and afterward died. The deputy sheriff returned the fire, killing the hired man. Goch fled
